Background

Situated in a sheltered valley in the foothills of the Sperrin mountains in Ireland's County Tyrone, you come across an oasis of peace and tranquillity. Baronscourt, the home of the Duke of Abercorn's family since 1612, is among that handful of old family Estates in the British Isles which combine great historical and architectural interest with a landscape of outstanding natural beauty.

This vibrant working farm, rural business, and Estate spreads over the valley floor at Baronscourt, and throughout its history each generation of the family has continued to ensure a programme of constant planting and landscaping of the park and gardens.

Baronscourt Estate is the home of Northern Ireland's finest wild venison and home reared pheasants and ducks, situated in Co. Tyrone. The management of the Estate's wild herd of Japanese Sika deer has been recognised with the Laurent Perrier Award for wild game conservation, and in season sells its wild game. While the forestry enterprise, an integral part of the Estate, won the Royal Forestry Society's 'Duke of Cornwall's Award' in 2003.

'Naturally Wild since 1751'

The herd of wild Japanese Sika deer were initially introduced in 1751, and now thrive in our forests and woodlands.
