Background

We come from a fifth generation family farm based in the heart of Ireland's 'Orchard County' - Armagh.

Our business has evolved from growing purely for our own use to converting to organic farming in order to produce flavoursome fruit and vegetables for our wide range of superior home-made jams and chutneys.

The combination of using superb organic ingredients and using recipes handed down by generations has enabled us to create a truly great tasting range of jams and chutneys which we hope you will enjoy.

Taking on the vital role of quality control is Kay's grandson Jack. Our resident taste tester, Jack decides which recipes are jamming and what recipes need to go back to the drawing board. Don't be fooled by his size because if our many Gold Star awards are anything to go by Jack certainly seems to know what he's doing!

Kay's Kitchen preserves are made from the finest organic ingredients where the quality home grown taste is instantly recognisable.
